Hi OUR School Community,

I appreciate everyone's patience as I navigate a very busy schedule while learning how to do many of the administrative tasks. If I have not responded to an email you have sent, I will soon and am so thankful for each of you and your children.

We are full staffed! YAY! This means I will have more time to meet the needs from an administrative standpoint. Miss Meg is a champion, this job keeps you on your toes! I have uploaded a survey for your family to fill out and either email back or print out and hand in. This is to see how we are doing so far this year and give you all an opportunity to share where we could improve too! Enjoy the long weekend!

Best,
Kelsey

TRANSITIONS & POWER STRUGGLES

Transitions can often be one of the hardest parts about dropping our kiddos off, picking them up, and even in getting out the door in the morning. These moments leave us feeling sad, frustrated, or just plain confused. We often as parents blame ourselves. Have some compassion. We are all doing our best as parents. And while parenting is the most fulfilling experiences it is also among the most challenging experiences. Consistency, love, routine, hugs,

I have uploaded a couple of different articles for families this month. They are listed below.
